Mitch McConnell gives Elizabeth Warren's 2020 presidential campaign an in-kind contribution

McConnell interrupts Warren's speech opposing Sessions

BY JAMES HOHMANN

with Breanne Deppisch

THE BIG IDEA: Mitch McConnell defended his decision to have the Senate formally vote to block Elizabeth Warren from speaking about the nomination of Jeff Sessions to be attorney general. "She was warned," he said. "She was given an explanation. Nevertheless, she persisted."

The majority leader said the firebrand from Massachusetts broke the chamber's rules by reading past statements about Sessions from Coretta Scott King and Ted Kennedy. "The senator has impugned the motives and conduct of our colleague from

-- McConnell gagging Warren is one of the best gifts she could have received, and her birthday is not even until June.

It solidifies her bona fides as a fighter for progressive causes. Just hours before the showdown on the floor, which Warren had not planned for, the former Harvard Law professor announced that she will come out with a book this spring called "This Fight is Our Fight."

-- The brouhaha will be especially resonant because it touches race and gender, two of the most volatile fault lines in American life. During Black History Month, McConnell specifically cited portions of a letter that the widow of Martin Luther King Jr. wrote to the Senate Judiciary Committee in opposition to Sessions's 1986 nomination to be a federal judge as a justification for the votes to rebuke Warren. "Mr. Sessions has used the awesome power of his office to chill the free exercise of the vote by black citizens," King wrote three decades ago, referencing prosecutions he oversaw as the U.S. attorney for Alabama.

As Barack Obama's former top strategist, David Axelrod, puts it:

-- Sanctioning Warren also gives her underlying message a much bigger platform: She was speaking to a nearly empty chamber against a nominee who, no matter what, is going to get confirmed later today. Very few people paid attention to similar floor speeches against Betsy DeVos the night before. Now millions of people will read the letter that King wrote.

In Mike Pence, conservatives trust

BY JAMES HOHMANN

with Breanne Deppisch

THE BIG IDEA: Mike Pence is the un-Trump. Serving the first president in American history who has no prior political or military experience, the vice president's background makes him well suited to sell Donald Trump's policies. Perhaps because he has been in their shoes, he has already proven adept at connecting with and reassuring conservative members of Congress, governors and talk radio hosts.

The last few days have brought several illustrations of the important role he will likely play in the administration. Two

Pence brings Supreme Court nominee Neil Gorsuch to a meeting with Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell. (J. Scott Applewhite/AP)

-- Apart from his limited constitutional responsibilities, Trump is depending on Pence to be his clean-up guy on the Hill. During a private lunch with GOP senators on Tuesday, Pence sought to soothe concerns about the botched rollout of the refugee ban. He gave his word that the White House will do a better job of keeping members in the loop going forward, especially on major policy announcements.

This is an incredibly delicate moment in the Capitol. Republicans who are wise, including Mitch McConnell, do not want to invoke the nuclear option. Smart conservatives understand that changing the rules of the Senate to allow for a simple majority to confirm Trump's Supreme Court nominee would set a disastrous precedent, which would invariably be used to put hyper-liberal justices onto the high court in future years. Even talking about going this route poisons the well and makes it that much harder to woo the eight moderate Democrats needed to clear the current 60-vote threshold.

Trump: Senate Republicans should 'go nuclear' to approve Gorsuch

But Trump, who is all about instant gratification, has never grappled with James Madison's conception of the Senate as a saucer to cool hot tea. Yesterday morning, as Pence escorted

Neil Gorsuch to his first meetings on the Hill, Trump lobbed a bomb by publicly urging Republican leaders to tear up the rules

VISA SECURITY PROGRAM

U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE), Homeland Security Investigations (HSI), through its Visa Security Program (VSP), assigns special agents to diplomatic posts worldwide to conduct law enforcement visa security activities and provides training to Department of State (DOS) Consular Affairs (CA) offices regarding threats, trends and other topics affecting visa adjudication.

- VSP operations are supported through screening and vetting¹ of visa applicants through the Pre-Adjudicated Threat Recognition and Intelligence Operations Team (PATRIOT), an interagency endeavor with U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP).
- The ICE VSP is authorized by Section 428 of the Homeland Security Act of 2002 and implemented by a 2003 Memorandum of Understanding between the Secretaries of State and Homeland Security.
- VSP operations are currently conducted at 30 visa-issuing posts in 25 countries with domestic screening and vetting operations conducted within the National Capital Region (NCR).

HSI special agents deployed overseas utilize all available investigative resources – including, but not limited to, PATRIOT analysis, interviews at post, and liaison with host and domestic partners – to identify, exploit and disrupt the travel of suspect individuals and applicants.

- The PATRIOT program interfaces between HSI, CBP and DOS systems enabling the VSP to screen 100% of non-immigrant visa (NIV) applications at VSP posts prior to DOS adjudication.
- Derogatory information discovered during screening is vetted by HSI and CBP personnel within the NCR utilizing law enforcement, open source and classified systems.
- VSP PATRIOT then provides deployed VSP personnel with relevant information prior to conducting interviews and other investigative activities.
- Following analysis of all known derogatory information, VSP personnel provide a unified DHS visa recommendation to DOS regarding an applicant's visa eligibility.
- Investigative findings by HSI special agents are then documented and shared with the broader law enforcement and intelligence communities.
- These efforts enable ICE to employ the VSP as a counterterrorism tool that disrupts and exploits the travel of illicit actors, mitigating threats posed by transnational terrorist and criminal networks.
- In Fiscal Year 2016, the VSP screened over 2.2 million visa applications, conducted nearly 4,000 interviews, made 910 nominations/enhancements to the terrorist watch list, and recommended the refusal of over 8,500 visa applications. Among the applications screened, over 7,600 had some nexus to terrorism identified.

Since 2009, ICE has expanded VSP operations to an additional 20 visa issuing posts in 18 countries, representing nearly a threefold increase to the VSP's footprint. ICE is committed to the aggressive expansion of VSP operations, maximizing resources domestically and internationally to enhance the screening, vetting and investigative efforts.

Student and Exchange Visitor Program

The Student and Exchange Visitor Program (SEVP) provides integrity to the U.S. immigration system by collecting, maintaining and analyzing information so that only legitimate nonimmigrant students and exchange visitors gain entry into the United States.

Throughout 2016, SEVP achieved many successes to support this national security mission:

- SEVP Analysis and Operations Center welcomed three HSI special agents detailed to the Counter Terrorism and Criminal Exploitation Unit. These agents assisted with criminal and administrative investigations concerning SEVP-certified schools and nonimmigrant student fraud.
- Supported the U.S. Department of Homeland Security final rule on the science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM) optional practical training (OPT) extension which increased oversight of STEM OPT in multiple ways. SEVP worked closely with USCIS on implementation, conducted the first STEM OPT employer site visits and proactively educated the academic community by launching the STEM OPT Hub on the Study in the States website.
- SEVP released final policy guidance on a host of issues impacting the English as a Second Language community, including how students with limited English skills are admitted for programs of study. This guidance aids SEVP adjudicators in their decision-making.
- SEVP deployed eight SEVIS releases that provided multiple system enhancements including making it easier for school officials to report important information to SEVP, thus strengthening data integrity to protect national security.
- SEVP representatives participated in nearly 200 events with stakeholders from the academic community, educating more than 17,000 stakeholders nationwide.
- SEVP maintained strong ties to stakeholders, receiving on average 4000 calls and 2000 emails monthly to the SEVP Response Center, and visiting 9000 certified schools monthly by field representatives.
- SEVP supported several criminal investigations related to schools enrolling non-immigrant students, including support to Operation Triple Lindy which targeted recruiters and resulted in numerous guilty pleas.

NCTC Vetting of ERO Detainees

Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) and Customs and Border Protection (CBP) are actively involved in a collaborative effort with the National Counter Terrorism Center (NCTC) to provide additional vetting of subjects encountered through border and interior immigration enforcement.

As part of normal processing procedures, criminal, immigration, and national security checks are already conducted by officers upon encountering a subject. These checks rely on information that is readily available in U.S. databases to include the FBI Terrorist Watchlist.

The purpose of this collaborative effort with NCTC is to expand the capabilities of our existing vetting process to ensure that subjects with a nexus to terrorism or national security threats are known to officers in the field or in ICE detention facilities.

The existing record checks conducted by officers typically encompasses only biographical or biometric data available at the time of arrest. This new process would expand those checks to include additional selectors such as telephone numbers, email addresses, home addresses, and any other information that is not typically utilized.

The vetting process that NCTC is using for this effort encompasses the same systems and procedures used by their Screening and Vetting Group, referred to as “Kingfisher Expansion” or KFE. KFE procedures are already used to vet all visa applicants, Electronic System for Travel Authorization (ESTA) applicants, as well as Refugee and Asylum applicants.

NCTC uses the biographical data and additional selectors provided by DHS and running that data through various classified databases, including the Terrorist Identities Datamart Environment (TIDE) and other non-disseminated message traffic. If any derogatory information is found on a subject, NCTC is utilizing additional screening to include call chain analysis (ie., identifying with whom the vetting subject is in phone (or email) contact).

In addition to the various selectors mentioned previously, ICE is providing NCTC with telephone toll data that is obtained (and not otherwise exploited) while subjects are in ERO custody.

This process was initiated in December 2015 for nationals from Syria. DHS and NCTC are working to conclude a Letter of Intent to expand this to additional countries (the same groups who are subject to additional screening under State Department’s Security Advisory Opinion (SAO) process), with the aim of further expansion as resources are available.

More companies back away from Donald Trump under pressure from customers

President Trump and Vice President Pence meet with Harley Davidson executives on the South Lawn of the White House yesterday. (Jabin Botsford/The Washington Post)

THE BIG IDEA: Companies are caught between a rock and a hard place, with President Trump on one side and their customers on the other.

Uber CEO Travis Kalanick quit President Trump's 15-member council of business leaders yesterday, and Disney

CEO Bob Iger let it be known that he won't attend a meeting at

The retailer said the first daughter's products are being dropped because of poor sales. In early December, Nordstrom had 71 Ivanka items for sale on its web site. Right now, just four are left. And they're all being sold at a clearance discount.

We've obviously written a lot about companies bending to pressure from Trump, especially defense contractors like United Technologies, Boeing and Lockheed. But firms that depend on retail sales will perhaps care more about pressure from their customers than from White House heavies.

Customers complained so loudly after Kawasaki USA – a distributor of motorcycle, ATVs and personal watercraft – sponsored an episode of “The Celebrity Apprentice” that the company said it will not sponsor the show again, so long as the president is credited as an executive producer.

The “Grab Your Wallet” campaign has targeted more than 60 companies, including Trump's golf courses and hotels, those that sell Trump-branded goods and other businesses whose leaders endorsed Trump or donated to his campaign. “The people who voted against Donald Trump may have lost at the ballot box, but they can win at the cash register,” Shannon Coulter, who helps lead the effort, told David Fahrenthold and Sarah Halzack.

“Grab Your Wallet” has taken five companies off its boycott list since November, after they stopped selling Ivanka merchandise: Shoes.com, Bellacor, Wayfair, Zulily and RueLaLa.

On Background from a White House Spokesperson

Pre-press call:

Congress has requested immigration legislative priorities from the White House and we plan to deliver this document imminently. The President is committed to building an immigration system that ensures the safety and security of American families, and protects the interests of American workers. Those core values must be at the center of any reforms to our country's immigration laws.

Post-press call:

As requested by Congress, the White House has delivered immigration legislative priorities to House and Senate leadership. The President has made clear he wants Congress to act and pass responsible immigration reform in conjunction with any legislation related to DACA, which will include legal authorities to close border security loopholes, restoring interior enforcement, and reforming the legal immigration system. These priorities represent the conclusions of bottom-up review conducted by the Departments and Agencies to determine the legislative reforms needed by rank-and-file law enforcement officers to do their jobs and keep the country safe. The Administration looks forward to continuing these conversations with Congress and remains focused on delivering safety and security to the American people.

He (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) wanted to give you a heads up that the info in here relating to the CIS referrals is inaccurate. We have edited several times so not sure where the breakdown lies.

On the section relating to CIS referrals, ICE has not investigated and prosecuted 45k cases that were referred to us. Below is what we sent back last week when we reviewed (the first paragraph being the original and my comment below). Thanks.

Data from USCIS' FDNSDirectorate shows that between 2007 and 2017, USCIS referred 45,858 foreign nationals who applied for immigration benefits to ICE, who were then investigated and prosecuted for committing egregious public safety-related offenses within the United States.

The individuals were not referred to ICE, and then investigated and prosecuted for committing offenses. The individuals had committed the criminal offense prior to or during the course of the adjudication of the immigration benefit, which led to their referral to ICE.

I've no idea if it's going to happen or specifically what he'd want to talk about. You'll recall that [REDACTED] had interest in stopping by for a visit months back but that hasn't materialized.

If you'd like to visit ICE, I'd recommend you meet with the following people:

Derek Benner, head of Homeland Security Investigations (HSI) – oversees worksite enforcement, customs-related issues

Matt Albence, head of Enforcement and Removal Operations (ERO) – oversees alien arrests and removals, operates in jails, deals with sanctuaries

And, of course, Director Tom Homan.

ERO and HSI operate somewhat independently, and both teams have important staff that should probably listen in. In other words, two separate follow-up meetings may also be worthwhile.

Here is Jon providing a weekly report to (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) that neither you or I saw before he sent it.

Since the DPC meeting was canceled this week, and since (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) wanted some updates from politicals, I gave him some info on what I've been up to in recent days as well as some info about some ICE efforts this week. Could have provided plenty more.

Subject: Progress updates (ICE-HHS memo; fees; other items)

(b)(6); et al. –

Here's an update on some of the progress this week on a number of fronts:

- The ICE-HHS MOA on UAC/sponsors was sent by HHS to ICE last night. We've sent a near-final draft up to OGC for review. Simultaneously, we're cleaning up some minor language and plan to let HHS take a look next week before sending it through ExecSec. Barring any significant changes from OGC, we anticipate this moving very quickly up the chain.
- I convened and directed a meeting on the redrafting of the ICE-DOL MOA on deconfliction in worksite enforcement. ICE anticipates having an outline of what we want to see in a new MOA within the first two weeks of January. I've gamed this out with Wetmore and the goal is to have DPC direct ICE and DOL to come to an agreement on terms more favorable to ICE's mission. This would also be an opportunity for DPC to require DOL to mandate E-Verify use by any employer who is the subject of a labor dispute.
- I ensured that our S.F. op for the end of January is not limited to only ERO efforts, but also includes HSI's workplace equities. I spoke with one of our top ERO officials managing the op and he's pulling in employees from multiple Areas of Responsibility (e.g., Los Angeles, San Diego).

The only cause for concern is whether the CR will have an impact on staff relocation, but we'll cross that bridge if we come to it.

- The DHS E-Verify meeting (which I helped convene after seeing no action) is going to help advance the multiple proposals we presented to DPC months back. I raised a number of issues not on the list, including: USCIS's monthly report on E-Verify non-confirmations, some of which are flagged but not routinely sent to ICE for further investigation (the USCIS career pledged to work with ICE to make it happen); the above proposal that DOL require E-Verify sign-up as part of any labor dispute settlements. DHS Policy is writing up the next steps.
- I should finalize (tonight) our VOICE Office report on the effects of victimization of illegal immigration. It will include data on call volume and topics and include a number of anonymized case studies to highlight the positive impact the office is having. I'm happy to have DPC take a look before we send it up the chain. The goal is to release it in January.
- Working with an ERO colleague to iron out some issues with the DDOR; it appears that some of the entities which received a letter from the DOJ are not entities with which ICE would file a detainer request and that, for some, DOJ is looking at cooperation, generally. Either way, I anticipate giving DOJ a draft to look at within the next few weeks.
- Tasked a field office to investigate the immigration history of a New York-based Pakistani-born USC recently charged with supporting ISIS via Bitcoins. As per the previous e-mail, better coordination between DHS Privacy and Comms is going to be critical if we're to shape the narrative. I will always take the initiative in locating potentially-helpful storylines, but I can't do Comms's and Privacy's jobs for them.
- Other issues addressed this week included: Flagging for DPC an inquiry from the UN on the administration's implementation of the Executive Orders, TPS, and DACA; stopping a response to an Amnesty International inquiry on enforcement practices; helping WH speechwriters locate additional ICE officers/operations worth highlighting in speeches; assisting a Fox News contributor as well as a friendly NGO on messaging on the leaked proposal on separating families (you should see some discussion on Fox and NBC either tonight or tomorrow); getting the WH's Education SME to take a look at an F-1 related issue that may be allowing schools to take advantage of STEM policies by simply reclassifying a non-STEM degree as STEM -- the Dept of Education is supposed to be on top of this, but it appears they may not be.
- ICE also helped edit/refine the BOP report on criminal aliens to make it more consistent with our language.
- Last week you wanted someone to take a look at statutes that can be used to hold illegal aliens accountable. You may be interested in my report "The Myth of the 'Otherwise Law-Abiding' Illegal Alien" are a number of statutes that the average, working illegal alien is violating. After the intro and some background, you'll find a list of statutes and a brief explanation of each that includes the punishment options. Many are already routinely prosecuted. Others are difficult to prove and time-consuming, hence the general preference for ICE to simply clean up the problem via deportation.

And that brings me to an update on the fines and penalties directive in the Executive Order on interior enforcement. I should have noted at the outset that the most impactful area in fulfilling this (as far as ICE is concerned) is in the worksite enforcement context. ICE is certainly helping to fulfill this as evidenced by the Asplundh Tree fine of $95 million a few months back, a record for an immigration case.

After leaving the meeting on Friday, I went immediately to our COS and located our top attorneys to determine where we stand on other fines like 274D (Failure to Depart). Our legal team and our policy team informed me that (b)(5) birth or naturalization. F46. Brother/sister of U.S. citizen, adjustment.

If there's any interest in bringing attention to this case, I'd recommend USCIS conduct an analysis to provide a little more detail on this convoluted family tree, in particular the immigration history of the sponsors. Could another visa lottery winner be involved?

The DOJ press release notes she set up a shell company in Pakistan and was stopped trying to board an airplane to Pakistan. The DOJ doesn't explain that she was born there – a factoid that helps explain things. DOJ needs to routinely get this information into releases, to the extent they are not legally prohibited from doing so. The DOJ goes out of its way to refer to her as “a U.S. citizen” in the first paragraph and uses a headline that reads, “Long Island Woman Indicted...”. In the least, the DOJ should write “a naturalized U.S. citizen” where possible. Otherwise, the result is immigration-free headlines in the Washington Times and NPR referring to a “Long Island woman”.

except to the extent the Chief Privacy Officer determines that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.”

As we’re constantly receiving inquiries on various aliens from outside sources, it may be helpful for the WH to direct DHS to craft a more efficient process for making a determination about releasing background info. I’ll note that DHS Privacy’s decision to punt the E.O. directive on limiting the scope of privacy policies was poorly received by the components. A unified privacy policy that fully embraces the directive might make this process better.

The message he wants to deliver: Insufficient beds will force ICE to release thousands of aliens, directly in conflict with this administration's agenda, and at a cost to public safety. This will happen while ICE and the DOJ are demanding that sanctuary jurisdictions stop releasing aliens.

As per DHS's direction, ICE is getting Homan calls with the minority and majority leaders in the House and Senate appropriations committees. Any suggestions you can provide would be welcomed.

Thank you.

Director Homan is very concerned about developments on the Hill suggesting that the House GOP is considering funding ICE for only 39,700 beds. We are already struggling with 40,700 beds and have repeatedly asked DHS for 51,000 beds. Homan does not want any surprises about the result of insufficient bed space and is asking that you provide him an opportunity to address White House staff and get him a half-hour with a House leader you believe is most appropriate. We would like to ensure that one of the House leaders will champion our need for at least 42,000 beds while they are counting votes.

The message he wants to deliver: Insufficient beds will force ICE to release thousands of aliens, directly in conflict with this administration's agenda, and at a cost to public safety. This will happen while ICE and the DOJ are demanding that sanctuary jurisdictions stop releasing aliens.

Maryland prosecutors will drop rape and sex offense charges against two immigrant teens accused of attacking a 14-year-old classmate in a high school bathroom stall, according to attorneys in a case that shocked local parents, attracted international and White House attention and stoked the debate about illegal crossings into the U.S.

In court on Friday, prosecutors said they will drop the sex assault case against Jose Montano, 17. On Thursday evening, they told a lawyer for (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) that they would also drop his sex assault case, according the lawyer, Andrew Jezic.

The judge ordered Montano released from custody on Friday.

ICE is not making decisions about enforcement based on an alien's religion. No class of alien is exempt from enforcement, as per Secretary (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) memo. People can always make an asylum claim.

As I understand the cases of each of these individuals, they are all removable aliens. Since the ACLU filed a lawsuit, ICE's legal team is trying to figure out how much information it can provide. I will see if there are any new decisions today on that front. ICE did send information up to DHS last week, however.

The message he wants to deliver: Insufficient beds will force ICE to release thousands of aliens, directly in conflict with this administration's agenda, and at a cost to public safety. This will happen while ICE and the DOJ are demanding that sanctuary jurisdictions stop releasing aliens.

As per DHS's direction, ICE is getting Homan calls with the minority and majority leaders in the House and Senate appropriations committees. Any suggestions you can provide would be welcomed.

Thank you.

Tomorrow morning ICE is having an internal meeting on the recalcitrant country index, at Director Homan's request. I'd like to make sure whatever is proposed is consistent with your vision. But I also have a very significant angle that I'd like to propose to you. Can I have five minutes of your time?

Moments ago (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) published two additional articles with quotes from (b)(6); (b)(7)(C). This follows last week's article precipitated by him (which resulted in a Daily Beast follow-up referencing (b)(6); (b)(7)(C)). We're on top of all this, but I thought you'd want to know your old quotes praising (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) are being used to buttress the narrative that Homan is an open-borders advocate. This certainly complicates the politics and we're at a point where it may be necessary for you to offer a quote in defense of Director Homan.

Prior to seeing (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) use of your old quotes, I considered offering my own quote in defense of Homan since one of the new articles references the former senior advisor at ICE. But that risks (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) creating a silly narrative pitting me against you. All of this is preposterous, but the twittersphere is starting to take (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) serious. Our public affairs has media planned for Homan this week – Daily Caller and (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) and we're using it to highlight Homan's solid pro-enforcement perspective, but right now it would be very helpful for the White House, if not you, to provide a solid quote to (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) to nip this narrative in the bud.

DACA Criminal Case Studies

Since the start of DACA in 2012, DHS has terminated DACA for approximately 1,987 recipients due to criminality and/or gang affiliation. With so many terminations, it is clear that DACA standards are insufficient for the purpose of protecting legal residents of the United States. It may also be the case that USCIS does not have the capacity to adequately vet illegal aliens for DACA purposes. DACA recipients include murderers, child molesters, individuals involved in fraud schemes, gang members, and many other types of criminals.

After the Associated Press highlighted ICE's arrest of 15 DACA recipients with criminal arrests during an enforcement action in 2015, the news outlet admitted that because criminal aliens benefit from DACA, it "could undermine the integrity of the government's program." Quoted in the article was House Judiciary Committee Chairman Bob Goodlatte, who said: "With few fraud detection measures and effective background checks in place, it's no surprise that ICE arrested over a dozen DACA recipients last week, most of whom had already been convicted of a crime. I and other members of the House Judiciary Committee have expressed concern about this for years."¹⁴

It is important to remember that DACA's guidelines allow applicants to have up to two misdemeanors on their records and still qualify. Below are some recent examples of DACA recipients involved in significant criminal activity. Some cases are ongoing and suspects are considered innocent until proven guilty.

Massive Fraud: ICE's Homeland Security Investigations (HSI) San Francisco reported Rajubhai Patel plead guilty to one count of money laundering in U.S. District Court in the Southern District of Texas. Patel is a citizen of India and resided in the United States based on his grant of DACA status which has since been revoked. These charges relate to Patel's role in a massive call center scam operated by a Transnational Criminal Organization (TCO). The TCO controlled call centers in India would extort individuals in the United States by impersonating U.S. government officials, typically Department of Homeland Security (DHS) or Internal Revenue Service officers, and demanding victims purchase debit/gift cards and/or wire funds. Patel is one of fifty-six (56) individuals and five (5) businesses that were indicted on October 19, 2016, in the Southern District of Texas on multiple counts of money laundering, wire fraud and conspiracy. Patel resided in Willowbrook, Illinois. He was responsible for liquidating tens of millions of dollars in victim funds using Green Dot debit cards and counterfeit identity documents.

Attempted murder of law enforcement: Syed Owais Zafar, a citizen of Pakistan, entered the United States on October 12, 2003 as an immediate family member of a foreign government official (A-2). On January 9, 2014, USCIS granted Zafar DACA status until January 8, 2016, and later extended it until November 11, 2017. On March 23, 2016, an immigration judge in Arlington, VA, administratively closed Zafar's removal proceedings because he was a DACA recipient. On June 26, 2017, the Smyth County, VA, Sheriff's Office arrested Zafar on three counts of Attempted Capital Murder of a law enforcement officer, Disregard or Elude, Endanger; Reckless Driving, and Vehicle with Flashing Lights-Injury/Property. The same day, ICE lodged an immigration detainer and a warrant of arrest with Southwest Virginia Regional Jail in Abingdon, VA. On July 5, 2017, USCIS terminated Zafar's DACA due to the seriousness of his pending charges. The Joint Terrorism Task Force confirmed that while detained, Zafar made terroristic threats such as: "Death to America" and "I'm going to get some brothers down here to blow this place up." Zafar's criminal court date is scheduled for September 15, 2017.

Quadruple homicide. Emmanuel Jesus Rangel-Hernandez was charged with four counts of first-degree murder in February 2015 in connection with a three-day shooting spree that resulted in the death of "America's Next Top Model" contestant Mirjana Puhar, a Serbian refugee.¹⁵ According to USCIS, Rangel had been arrested by ICE in 2012 after an arrest on drug charges. USCIS approved his DACA application in August 2013 "notwithstanding a TECS record indicating that he was a known gang member". Administrative removal proceedings were closed in December 2013.

Murder: Oliver Mauricio Funes-Machado, a citizen of Honduras, was arrested on March 3, 2005 by the United States Border Patrol (USBP) in Laredo, TX and served a Notice to Appear pursuant to section 212(a)(6)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA), as an alien present in United States without being admitted or paroled. Funes, a juvenile at the time, was travelling with his aunt, and they were both subsequently released by USBP. On December 6, 2005, an Immigration Judge ordered Funes removed from the United States to Honduras, in absentia. On October 11, 2013, USCIS approved Funes's DACA application valid until June 24, 2015 and then extended it until October 21, 2017.

On March 6, 2017, the Franklin County (North Carolina) Sheriff's Department arrested Funes outside of his home in Zebulon, NC for First-degree Murder of his mother. The following day, ICE's Enforcement and Removal Operations (ERO) received an Immigration Alien Response (IAR) from the Law Enforcement Service Center (LESC) due to Funes' arrest for murder. Funes was identified as an alien present in the United States illegally and subject to a final order of removal.

Child abuse: On January 19, 2016, ICE's ERO in Phoenix encountered Francisco Javier Rios-Covarrubias, a citizen of Mexico, at the Maricopa County Sheriff's Office. Rios entered the United States without inspection on an unknown date. On January 25, 2013, USCIS approved Rios' DACA application to January

¹⁵ "Immigration officials admit Charlotte murder suspect was in gang database," Charlotte Observer, Apr. 21, 2015. <http://www.charlotteobserver.com/news/local/crime/article19178661.html>

24, 2015. On January 19, 2017, Rios was arrested by the Mesa Police Department for Sex Trafficking of a Minor; Kidnapping with Death, Injury, Sex; Sexual Conduct with a Minor; and Child/Vulnerable Adult Abuse with intent. On the same date, ERO Phoenix lodged an I-247 detainer on Rios, and he is being held by the State of Arizona with no bond. Rios' pretrial hearing date on his criminal case is scheduled for September 22, 2017. "This case is one of the most disturbing incidents that we've seen in quite a while," Mesa Police Chief John Meza said. "This is one of those cases that really just shocks the soul."¹⁶

7,200 rounds of ammunition, weapon charges: In July, the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals released an opinion on a case involving Guillermo Soriano Arrieta, a DACA recipient driving with a pistol and thousands of rounds of ammunition. Arrieta had been stopped by a police officer in Texas who noticed a defective taillight. After noticing that Arrieta appeared excessively nervous, the officer asked whether there was contraband in the vehicle. Arrieta disclosed the presence of a firearm and ammunition, and a consent search of the vehicle produced a pistol and over 7,200 rounds of ammunition. Arrieta was then arrested. While Arrieta was in custody, authorities determined that he was a citizen of Mexico and that he was in receipt of DACA.¹⁷ Arrieta entered a conditional guilty plea of being an alien illegally and unlawfully in the United States in possession of a firearm affecting interstate and foreign commerce.

Violent rape and assault; molestation: Mexican citizen Salvador Diaz-Garcia, 23, first received DACA in 2013 and had it extended multiple times through 2019 until it was terminated in August 2017 after being charged with second-degree assault and rape charges in a vicious attack against a 19-year-old woman near Seattle, Washington. Media reports that woman was attacked in her apartment complex's gym and left with severe facial injuries, "including a broken jaw and dangling ear". Diaz-Garcia also faces child molestation charges for allegedly assaulting a 14-year-old the same day the rape of the 19-year-old occurred.¹⁸

Sex offenses related to a child: Carlos Pascual-Pablo, a citizen of Guatemala, entered the United States on May 1, 2005, without being admitted or paroled. On May 29, 2012, an immigration judge ordered Pascual removed to Guatemala. On July 11, 2013, USCIS granted Pascual's DACA status. On December 6, 2013, the Board of Immigration Appeals (BIA) granted Pascual 60 days to voluntarily depart the United States. On March 31, 2014, the BIA administratively closed proceedings in Pascual's case. On July 10, 2015, Pascual's DACA expired, and he did not file another application with USCIS to renew his DACA status. On April 3, 2017, the Maricopa County Justice Courts convicted Pascual for the offense of Attempt to Commit Molestation of Child and sentenced to lifetime probation. The following day, ICE ERO arrested Pascual. On June 19, 2017, the BIA reopened proceedings in Pascual's case, reaffirmed their previous order, with the exception of permitting Pascual to voluntarily depart, and ordered him removed from the United States. On July 5, 2017, ERO Phoenix removed Pascual to Guatemala.

Sex offenses related to a child: Isaac Marquez-Pineda, a citizen of Mexico, entered the United States on an unknown date and unknown location without being admitted or paroled. On November 12, 2014, USCIS approved Marquez's application for DACA, valid until November 11, 2016. On July 17, 2017, Marquez was convicted in the Superior Court of Arizona, Maricopa County, for the offenses of Attempt to Commit Sexual Conduct with a Minor and Sexual Abuse and sentenced to probation for life and ordered to register as a sex offender. ICE ERO arrested him the same day. On July 18, 2017, ERO Phoenix served Marquez a Notice to Appear charging removability pursuant to section 212(a)(6)(A)(i) of the INA, as an alien present in the United States without being admitted or paroled. Marquez will remain in ICE custody pending immigration proceedings.

Sexual abuse of a child: Erwin Garduno-Rodriguez, a citizen of Mexico, claims to have entered the United States on September 18, 2005, with a Border Crossing Card at San Ysidro, CA. On January 18, 2013, USCIS approved Garduno's DACA application. On July 7, 2017, the Iowa District Court for Crawford County convicted Garduno for Sexual Abuse, 2nd degree, for which Garduno was given a 25 year suspended prison sentence. Additionally, Garduno is required to register as a sex offender for life. At the time of the offense, the victim was 7 years old. On July 18, 2017, ERO St. Paul arrested Garduno and served him a Notice of Intent to Issue an Administrative Removal Order. Garduno will remain in ICE custody while he awaits his removal from the United States.

Under the previous administration, Notably, in fiscal years 2013 and 2014, the majority of releases of serious criminal offenders were made pursuant to federal court decisions or bond decisions by immigration judges -- not by ICE leadership.

In a leading court case on immigration detention, Zadvydas v. Davis, the Supreme Court ruled that ICE generally could not detain an individual ordered removed more than six months, unless the individual would be repatriated in the reasonably foreseeable future. This detention limit can be triggered when a country simply refuses to accept repatriation of its national, irrespective of the individual's criminal history.

ICE's custody decisions for individuals in removal proceedings are also often reviewed by immigration judges who may set a bond amount that can result in release from ICE custody. Other individuals, typically those who have committed less serious offenses, may be released as a discretionary matter after evaluation of their case by a career ICE law enforcement officer, often with conditions of release such as enrollment in the Alternatives to Detention program or after posting a bond amount. The decision to make a discretionary release, or to set bond, enables ICE to focus its resources on the detention and removal of other individuals whom ICE deems to pose a greater risk to public safety or national security. ICE is committed to making certain that both mandatory and discretionary releases are executed in a way that promotes public safety and protects communities in accordance with existing law.

ICE has made important reforms to the processes that govern such releases, and the agency is committed to continue to take every possible measure to ensure the public's safety and the removal of dangerous criminals.

I note your rigorous defense of Homan, but someone in ICE leadership made the decision to carry out policies that posed a real threat to U.S. citizens. A career employee made the decision to carry out the policy of ordering the release of tens of thousands of criminal illegal aliens, some of them murderers and sex offenders. These criminals were released into U.S. communities.

"My boss told me to" is not a defense in regard to such extreme circumstances. Honorable men and women resign, sound an alarm to Congress, or otherwise attempt to take advantage of whistleblower protections before putting U.S. citizens at risk with such policies. They do not follow orders that any reasonable person would know will result in harm to U.S. citizens so that they can keep their job or continue a forward trajectory in their career. In such a circumstance, "I had to follow the order if I wanted to keep my job" fails to rise to the level of a reasonable defense.

Did Acting ICE Director Homan, in his role as ERO director under Obama, do any of these things mentioned above? Did he in any way formally protest what he was being told to do? Is there any documentation that Acting Director Homan in any way objected, sounded an alarm, or notified Congress that the Obama Admin wanted murderers, sex offenders, and tens of thousands of other criminal illegal aliens to be released? Or did he follow the orders blindly?

What Acting Director Homan is currently saying (which happens to be what is pleasing to the current administration) sounds amazing! Why didn't he speak out and say these things under the Obama Admin? These are the questions being raised by the ICE Council and the officers and agents whom they represent.

Acting Director Homan's own recent words condemn his previous choices. He himself is saying that such releases of criminal aliens pose a significant risk to U.S. communities. This is exactly what the ICE officers are saying and asking for an account on.

The ICE officers attribute the choice to follow orders and release criminal illegal aliens into U.S. communities to Acting Director Homan in his previous role in ERO under Obama. Was this, in fact, his call? If not, specifically who in ERO made the call?

Thank you for your consideration,

But, you do understand that the position you're asking about is held by career law enforcement professionals - civil servants not political appointees, right? Civil servants enact the policies directed to them by the executive branch - they don't have the luxury of creating those policies. This includes the position Mr. Homan held under the previous administration.

If you are attempting to suggest that Mr. Homan is not a vigorous defender of immigration enforcement, the hard working agents and officers of ICE and the public safety and national security of this country, then you could not be more wrong. He has dedicated his life to these efforts. Any suggestion to the contrary amounts is foolish and absolutely without merit.

What role does what role does the deputy executive associate director of ERO play in the release of illegal aliens into the U.S.?

If not the decision of the ERO director, who mad such decisions?

My questions were not about criminal aliens who were freed by other jurisdictions failing to honor ICE detainees.

Namely, what role does the deputy executive associate director of ERO play in the release of illegal aliens into the U.S.? Acting Director Homan previously held this position during the Obama administration and, as you know, many criminal illegal aliens were released into U.S. communities. The ICE Council attributes these decisions and actions to the role Acting Director Homan previously held.

If not the decision of the ERO director, who mad such decisions?

Thanks,

Greetings,

My name is (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) and I work for (b)(6); (b)(7)(C). I'm writing a piece on the National ICE Council's views of Thomas Homan and his role as Acting Director of ICE. Acting Director Roman's perspectives will be included in the piece if he is willing to communicate and address the concerns of the ICE agents and officers with whom I've spoken.

Thank you,
